Faculty Development 4 Medical Educators (FD4ME) is an on-line faculty development and continuing education program located at <https://fd4me.osu.edu/wsu/>. FD4ME is a series of peer reviewed, interactive, e-learning modules devoted to improving the knowledge, attitudes and skills of medical and other health professional personnel in the important domains of teaching, professionalism and leadership.

Below are short descriptions of your 3 required modules:

Adult Teaching Premises and Practices

▶ 1.00 continuing education credit hours

This module explores techniques for creating adult centered learning environments, and introduces a model for presenting instruction that encourages learners to take responsibility for their learning.

Creating A Respectful Learning Environment: Avoiding Student and Trainee Mistreatment

▶ 0.5 continuing education credit hours

In this module, we involve you in a dialogue that will help you better understand how to recognize and prevent mistreatment in medical education.

Feedback and Evaluation in Clinical Teaching: Basic Concepts

▶ 0.5 continuing education credit hours

In this module you will have an opportunity to learn about the key elements of effective feedback, models for feedback and the creation of an action plan, as well as strategies for evaluation that will be helpful to residents and fellows teaching in various clinical environments.
